ALEXANDER FILM CORPORATION presents O THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES OCIL 17848

4) "THE DYING DETECTIVE" Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. 3 Directed by maurice Elver

SHET LOCK HOLMES------Eille Norwood Sulverton Smith---------Cecel Humphreys

The death of Victor Savage puzzled Sherlock Holmes. It was certified as being due from tempamule fever, an obscure Asiatic disease, An enquiry revealed the fact that Savage atood between his unale, Culvarton Smith, and a rayersion of 110,000. Engwing that Gulverton Smith was an expert on Asistic diseases, Holmes, disguised, called upon him. The disguise was penetrated and Holmes driven out of the house. Later he received a little Oriental box with a sliding top. Careful examination revealed that a hidden needle has been treated with the bacteria of tampanule fever. Days later Watson was horrified to learn that Holmes was dying of the fever. Holmes persuaded him to call Culverton Smith in, and he explained that he had been pricked by the needle in the box. Swith saw that the case was hopeless, and smilingly admitted that he would be responsible for the death of Folmes. The detective begged him to save his life, and the expert, whose suspicions had been aroused, promised to do so, and left presumably to fetch his medicine case from his car in the street. Attempting to escape, he was arrested by detectives in waiting and then learned to his disgust that Holmes had been shamming illness.
